Series Scope and Content Summary

This series contains archival materials and a small selection of relevant books and pamphlets primarily regarding Northeast Brazil. Ephemera, pamphlets, and photocopied materials relating to a broad comparative project on Brazil, Chile, and Mexico initiated in Brazil in 1969 (phase one) and 1971 (phases 2 and 3), Chile (1972), and Mexico (1973) are included. The bulk of materials relate to Northeast Brazil and a focus on two communities, Petrolina in the state of Pernambuco and Juazeiro in the state of Bahia. The series includes audiotape interviews with the leaders of the two communities.

Series

Portugal

Series Scope and Content Summary

This series contains folders on Portugal and its colonies. Early folders concentrate on Angola, Mozambique, and other former colonies. See Cabral series for material on Cabo Verde and Guinea Bissau. The series concludes with extensive ephemera material, including clippings from the weekly Expresso that deal with Portugal prior to the coup of 25 April 1974 and after the coup until 2001. These materials were used in preparation of various books, including Portuguese Africa (1967) and Class and State in Portugal (forthcoming). See also the 15 reels of microfilm on Emerging Nationalism in Portuguese Africa in the UC Riverside library, and the catalogue published by Stanford University under the editorship of Ronald H. Chilcote. See Special Collection Chil 02

Special Collection Chil 01.1 File Description Detail BAJA CALIFORNIA
An Archive of Clippings from La Voz de la
Frontera (Mexicali), 1967 to 1977

Organized by Ronald H. Chilcote with Cis LeRoy and Sheryl Lutjens This project really began in 1968 when I was able to introduce a class of thirty students to the politics of Mexicali, Baja California. The course focused on Mexicali and Calexico. A great deal of information was gathered and studied, including acquisition of the principal newspapers of the area. Jesus Blanc Ornela, s, at the time editor of La Voz, provided us with a complimentary copy of this newspaper, founded in 1967. Eventually these copies were filmed and current issues continue to be filmed by Custom Microfilm Service as part of the materials in the series promoted by Latin American Perspectives. Charles Ornelas was particularly helpful in coordinating the 1968 project. In 1974 another group of undergraduate and graduate students ventured to Mexicali to conduct interviews with officials, educators, students, and leaders; these were recorded on videotape and are held at the University of California, Riverside (an index of these holdings is available from me at the address below). This project was supported by a University of California Innovative Teaching Grant. In addition to the videotaping, students examined La Voz, marked articles, and undertook some clipping. Cis LeRoy coordinated the newspaper work, while Ross Walker led four or five field trips to Mexicali.

Most of the materials were marked and clipped during the past two years. Frances Chilcote and 3yong-Moo Hwang ably assisted in this phase. Finally, Sheryl Lutjens organized the archive into subject files and the index of topics, which follows. A tremendous effort was given to this project by all these persons and many others. La Voz has assisted several University of California, Riverside, graduate students in their dissertations. We hope it will facilitate work of many scholars in the future.

Name: Saul Landau papers (Collection 015)

DESCRIPTION: A detailed 25-page description (17 pages in Chilcote listings) identifies film material produced by Saul Landau during a career of documentary film making and writing, mostly on Latin America. The portion on Cuba is particularly rich. The material comprises 8 and 16 mm film, 1 inch master tapes, mini-DVDs, Mini DAT, VHS, Beta, audio and other formats. Paper material includes personal papers, Cuba files, Middle East files, Pacifica Radio transcripts, and manuscript articles.

Landau studied under C. Wright Mills and peripherally was associated with Hispanic American Studies at Stanford in the early 1960s and with the journal Latin American Perspectives. He was an Associate of the Policy Institute in London and a professor at California State University, Pomona. Occasionally he has given talks at UCR.

BOX #: Special Related 02

Name: Lois Oppenheim Archive

Description:

Lois Oppenheim has graciously joined the UCR Special Collections with books and materials on Chile. She also donated substantially to the Latin American Perspectives Fellowship Endowment. Her collection evolves from her research in Chile during the Allende regime of 1971-1973 and the period of his overthrow where she experienced difficulty escaping the military regime with her research intact. Here is how she describes the experience along with a dedication to her parents:

I went to Chile for the first time in 9/'72 in order to do dissertation research on the Allende government, and I was there until January of '74. As you might imagine, I had tremendous difficulties after the coup getting out my research materials, books, newspapers, etc. It was only through the intervention of my mother (good Jewish mother that she was!) that I was successful. She put pressure on the State Dept through her then Senator, Jake Javits, and the consulate finally agreed to help me by sending out all of my materials through the diplomatic pouch. Before this, I hadn't even been able to get past the Chilean secretary to speak to anyone! (BTW, Peter Winn was down there then, too, with his research on the Yarur factory workers, and, after I told him what I had done, he also pressed the consulate to help him, too ...just an interesting historical factoid).

Because of my personal experiences in Chile, my parents, who were good old-fashioned liberals to begin with and internationalists in outlook, were further politicized and became quite knowledgeable about Chile. They both died four years ago, and I was thinking that perhaps the Chile part of the UCR special Latin American collection (or just my materials, if you prefer) might be named in their honor. I might not have had any of the materials from the Allende years to donate to you without my mother's assistance, and both my parents were staunch internationalists and political activists throughout their lives. I think it would be a fitting gesture to honor their lives

Name: Bobbye Ortiz collection on Latin America (Collection 319)

DESCRIPTION:

The donor Hobart Spalding wrote:

“Before she died, Bobbye Ortiz, then Associate Editor of Monthly Review, left these materials, mostly on Chile. She had collected them primarily during the Allende years and in the aftermath of the coup. She asked that they be housed in a safe place where progressive scholars would be able to use them freely. I promised her that I would fulfill her wishes. Over the years, several potential donees surfaced but none, in the final analysis, fulfilled all the conditions stipulated in my promise to Bobbye. Hopefully the Riverside LAP/Chilcote archive will do this. As far as any acknowledgement perhaps a bookplate saying: In Memory of Bobbye S. Ortiz: Feminist, Socialist, Revolutionary.”
